

Community Matters

Those with a vested interest are more likely to care about their local community.

Potential home buyers care more about their local community and feel they should do more to help within the community:

Those who own or plan to own a home also feel a deeper sense of community where they live:

